Damaged item

Customers are allowed to try the purchased item/items to verify that the function and characteristics of the products are in order. To get a full refund for a returned item, though, you may not use it or wash it, and all original tags must not be removed. The customer is responsible for any change or damage to an item when handling it. This means that if the item has been used for anything other than what is permitted, it will be regarded as used. This means that if you wish to return the item, you would either receive no refund or a partial refund, depending on the individual case.
